who were majors or lieutenant colonels, received orders from the Chief Directorate Border Troops (GUPV) in Moscow to report immediately in person to the Chief Directorate in Moscow. All of them received the School's diploma before they left, although they had attended only five months of the 12-month course. Having reported to GUPV, they were transferred to the jurisdiction of General Staff, Soviet Armed Forces, and put into ground forces uniforms. All were sent to East Germany and appointed special advisers of East German Border Troop units stationed on the East German - West German border. Positions to which these officers were appointed were in almost all cases equivalent to those of regimental Co's or of battalion Co's. At the same time quite a large number of field grade Soviet Border Troop officers were called away from their jobs, ordered to report to GUPV, and having gone through the above-described procedure were also sent to East Germany to take over positions similar to those of the officers who had
